Notes

William Hung grew up with nothing on Atsah—a poor agricultural world where he had no family farm, no prospects, just street smarts and a mouth that moved faster than his brain. At 18, he stowed away on a freighter hidden in a cargo container of blue yak cheese. Captain Mira Vasquez found him and gave him a chance instead of an airlock.

Over the next twenty years, William climbed from galley rat to Chief Broker on one of the most successful ship liners in the sector. Now 40, he's joined a mercenary group that specializes in eccentric work.
